Magical words

Words are magical things! They make you happy when you are sad. They turn bad days into good days. They even change ugly frogs into handsome princes! The Word Wizards can make magic. They need your help to learn some new magic words, though.

one slimy handsome loving happy green

Some words are short. Others are long. They are all magical!

What are words for?

There are all kinds of words. We use words called adjectives to describe things. We use words to share our bright ideas. We tell funny jokes. We sing silly songs. We listen to bedtime stories. What else can we do with words?

What are adjectives?

Adjectives are words that tell us more about things. They describe words called nouns. Nouns name people, animals, places, things, or ideas. The word “apple” is a noun. The words “red” and “crisp” are adjectives. We could use those adjectives to describe an apple.

Food for thought

We use our five senses to describe nouns. Adjectives tell us how nouns look, sound, smell, taste, or feel. Think of the last food you ate. What color was it? Was it sweet or salty? Was it soft or crunchy? Think of adjectives to describe your favorite foods.

Word Wizard in training

Which sentence below has adjectives? Help the Word Wizard find them! Remember to look for words that use the five senses.

The furry little monkey is eating a tasty yellow banana.

The boy is swinging like a monkey!

All kinds of adjectives

There are all sorts of adjectives! Some tell what kinds of things nouns are. You could say you went to a birthday party. There were blue balloons there. The word "birthday" describes the party. The word "blue" tells about the balloons.

How many?

Other adjectives tell how many things there are. You could say there were many kids at the party. You ate three pieces of birthday cake. The word "many" describes the number of kids at the party. The word "three" tells that you ate too much cake!

Word Wizard in training

Help the Word Wizard describe the picture. How many children are at the party? What shape is the cake? What color are the balloons? What other adjectives can you use to describe the picture?

Joining words

We join adjectives and other words together. The words form sentences. Sentences are complete thoughts or ideas. They are made up of many types of words. Most sentences have adjectives. Some do not.

Before or after

Adjectives work with nouns in sentences. They usually come before the nouns. We can say, "The cute puppy chases the bouncy ball." Sometimes adjectives come after nouns. We can say, "The puppy is cute when it chases the bouncy ball." How do you find adjectives? You look for words that describe people, animals, places, things, or ideas.

Word Wizard in training

Help the Word Wizard find the adjectives in these sentences. Do they come before or after the nouns?

The hungry puppy is chewing an old slipper.

The kitten is tired. It is sleeping in a soft bed.

Comparing words

We use adjectives to compare nouns. Comparing means telling what is the same or different. We use some adjectives to compare two nouns. We add “er” to these adjectives. The words “taller” and “grumpier” are adjectives. They compare two people, places, or things.

Sometimes we cannot add “er” to adjectives. “Funner” is not a word. We would say “more fun” instead.

Which drawing looks sadder?*

More than two

We use other adjectives to compare more than two nouns. We add “est” to these adjectives. The words “loudest” and “laziest” are adjectives.

We cannot add “est” to some adjectives. “Afraidest” is not a word. We would say “most afraid” instead.

*Which ice-cream cone is tallest?
Which one would you like to eat?*

Antonyms

Some adjectives are antonyms. Antonyms are words with totally different meanings. They are also called opposites. The words “good” and “bad” are antonyms. The words “hot” and “cold” are antonyms. What are some other antonyms?

Telling stories

Antonyms help us tell stories. You could say you got a pair of sneakers. You really needed them. You could also say you got new sneakers. Your old sneakers were really stinky. The words “new” and “old” are antonyms. They tell that the shoes are very different.

Synonyms

Some adjectives are synonyms. Synonyms mean the same thing or nearly the same thing as other words. The words “little” and “small” are synonyms. The words “big” and “large” are synonyms. They are words with the same meanings.

Not boring

Would you like a story that used the same adjectives? No! It would be boring! It would be dull! It would be dreary! Synonyms make stories more fun to read. They work like magic. They turn boring stories into interesting stories.

Word Wizard

Show the Word Wizard which caption has synonyms. You are smart. You are clever. You are bright. You can do it!

*The clown is sad.
He is sad because
he lost his balloons.*

*The clown is silly.
He makes the children

Not quite the same

Some adjectives have similar meanings. Similar means they are sort of the same. They are not exactly the same, though. How would you describe dinosaurs? Would you say they were large? Or would you say they were huge?

The girl is much bigger than her toy dinosaurs. She looks gigantic! Do the dinosaurs seem small or tiny?

Shades of meaning

The words “large” and “huge” both mean “big.” The word “huge” tells us dinosaurs were really big! The words have different shades of meaning. That means they are similar but have small differences. Understanding the differences helps us tell our stories.

Some dinosaurs are creepy or frightening.

This dinosaur is not scary at all!

Sorting words

We can sort words to understand shades of meaning. Some adjectives have weaker meanings. Other adjectives have stronger meanings. We can put them in order from weakest to strongest.

Weaker words

good thin
dusty mean mad pretty chilly
bad

Stronger words

great skinny
dirty
cruel
angry
beautiful
cold
awful

Strongest words

amazing
scrawny
filthy
evil
furious gorgeous freezing
terrible

Word Wizard in training

Help the Word Wizard describe this picture. Do the boys look happy? Or do they look thrilled? Do you think they are hungry? Or are they starving? Think of weak and strong words to describe the picture.

Painting a picture

What things do you see in this picture? Use adjectives to describe them.

Adjectives help us communicate with others. To communicate is to share ideas and information. Adjectives help us describe how things look, sound, smell, taste, or feel. They help us tell stories. They let us paint pictures with our words.

Word Wizard in-training

You can be a Word Wizard too! Draw or paint a picture of yourself. Then write down adjectives that describe you. Are you short or tall? Are you funny or serious? Try to think of many different adjectives. They will help others learn all about you!
